middlebury college

Kaleidoscope

2006-2007

In its rural Vermont setting, which is unique in itself with its famous dairy cows and maple syrup, Middlebury College has carved out a niche for itself as an unconventional institution of higher learning. Since 1800, Middlebury College has been doing things its own way. From Robert Frost and the Breadloaf School of English to Sundae Sundays in the dining halls, Middlebury truly has its own unique character. Academically, Middlebury offers a diverse range of majors and minors to its students. Middlebury is especially well-known for its language programs and walking across campus, one could hear Arabic, Russian, Italian, Portuguese or even Japanese buzzing in his ear. Outside of class, students can be seen participating in a wide range of activities from ice-climbing to ultimate frisbee, to bagpiping and even Quidditch, the magical sport derived from J.K. Rowling's Harry Potter series. Middlebury is the only college to boast its own Quidditch team. Middlebury also has a reputation for being environmentally-conscious. Throughout the year, Middkids could be seen eating in candlelit dining halls to conserve energy, replacing standard light bulbs with energy-efficient halogen bulbs, and throwing paper and plastic into the blue recycling bins placed all over campus. Middlebury's good reputation attracted several important guests on campus throughout the course of the year. In the fall, Chief Justice John Roberts spoke in Mead Chapel, and later in the year, the man who inspired "Hotel Rawanda" made an appearance on campus. Former president Bill Clinton rounded the year off by speaking at Commencement. While Middlebury's academics and activities emphasize its unique personality, it is the students, faculty and staff who truly make Middlebury the wonderfully unique college that it is.

Miss Rumphius traveled to mountains, jungles and deserts, and everywhere she went she made friends she would never forget. When she went home, she scattered lupine seed, and in the spring "there were lupines everywhere" for all to enjoy.

"When I grow up," a girl says, "I too will go to faraway places and come home."
"That is all very well, but there's a third thing you must do."
"What is that?" asks the girl.
"You must do something to make the world more beautiful."
"All right," the girl says.

But she does not know yet what that can be.

Arielle,

Our love and support wherever you go, whatever you do, always and forever.

Dear David,
Congratulations on your college graduation! You've had a power-packed last four years with intense learning, exploration, and friendships. We marvel at your talent and zest for life. Most of all, we honor who you are, the kind, caring and wonderfully fun-loving young man who has a special way of bringing smiles to people's faces and making memories in people's hearts that last forever. May your dreams lead you on to new adventure. May you always put your heart and soul into life and your trust in God. As you walk life's many paths, may you continue to grow and learn, and may you always keep your sense of humor and your passion for bringing happiness to others.
